

INTROIT

Oft do I sit, still as a mouse
Till the Muse me bites, hard as a louse
And swift must I write, ere the lines be soused
In beer, or wine, or krupnikos

Thus I come to honor my bells
With windy tale that doleful knells
A Poet-laureate comes to the feast
So shut ye up! Let me speak my piece.

© Elmar T. Schmeisser, 2003